Art Unit: 1761

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 13-54 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claims 13, 27, 38, and their dependent claims are indefinite as to "(a) method of delivering microbiologically safe lipid-based inclusions to yogurt" as the inclusions are not delivered to yogurt. The claims are directed to the preparation of the inclusion, not to the production of yogurt.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 13-54 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over O'Sullivan et al (US 7,037,538).

O'Sullivan et al disclose the preparation of a yogurt containing confectionery pieces, wherein a heated lipid-based mixture is injected into a chilled yogurt (see entire patent).

Crystallization would be obvious to that of O'Sullivan as the same components and process steps are used.

The claims differ as to the recitation of a filling.

O'Sullivan also discloses the addition of additives such as a conventional fruit sauce or puree where the additives may be added similar to the chocolate stream (i.e. lipid-based mixture), see column 8, lines 40-57).

It would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art, at the time the invention was made, to add the lipid-based mixture into the fruit filling in order to form inclusions because O'Sullivan discloses the addition of fruit in combination with inclusions in yogurt as conventional in the art.

The prior art teaches injection into a chilled material as is claimed. Furthermore, Applicant attaches no criticality to the point of inclusion and discloses injection either directly into the yogurt or the fruit filling.

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 13-54 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
